THE PRESIDENT'S WAY.

Every visitor to the white house receives a shock—an invigorating shock of frank earnestness. When you go into the president's reception room you will see some man who seeks an office for a friend or a follower, and he speaks in a low tone to the president. The president answers or questions him quickly, so that everybody in the room hears what he says: he is an audible, not a whispering president. Another man approaches him and speaks hesitatingly. "Tell me what you have to say quickly, quickly," says Mr. Roosevelt. The story is told of a postal appointment for a friend. After presenting his case he said: "Mr. President, I have here a number of papers bearing on the subject. I suppose I ought to leave them with the postoffice department."

"No let me see them," Then as the president hastily ran his eye over them he laid aside one that was marked "Petition"; then another; and a third. "Petition," said he, "I could get a petition to have you hanged," and he gave these back to the visitor.

Mr. Roosevelt comes into his audience room alert, earnest, with the air of a man who has something to do. There's a spring in his step. There is candor in his manner and a natural cordiality, but his quickness of motion and of mind gives a new sensation. Begin to make to him the little speech that you had thought out beforehand and you soon see that he is outtrunning you. While you are still in your preface, he has jumped into the middle of what you mean to say, and he answers you before you have spoken it. During a three-minute interview he has time to rush you forward with your story, to take in and digest all that you meant to say, to laugh, to look you in the face squarely, to give you an answer, to shake your hand cordially; and you are gone with your speech undelivered, but he has perfectly understood you and your errand. Before you are done thanking him he smiles and waves recognition to an acquaintance at the other side of the room—swift, earnest, cheerful, no such interviews have been held with any other man that ever gave audience in the white house. As unconventional as Lincoln, as natural as Grant, as earnest as Cleveland, and swifter than any of them by an immeasurable difference, Mr. Roosevelt does graceful but fatal violence to the "presidential manner."

A Good Cough Medicine.
(From the Gazette, Toowoomba, Australia.)

I find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an excellent medicine. I have been suffering from a severe cough for the last two months, and it has effected a cure. I have great pleasure in recommending it.—W. C. WOCKNER. This is the opinion of one of our oldest and most respected residents, and has been voluntarily given in good faith that others may try the remedy and be benefited, as was Mr. Wockner. This remedy is sold by A. E. Howell, Socorro; W. M. Borrowdale, Magdalena.

Race between Gold and Silver.
The official statement of the mineral products of the United States for the last 10 years—1891 to 1900 inclusive—shows the oblique value of the gold produced, starting at less than half that of the silver produced, finally overtook and passed it. The actual quantity of the yearly product of gold, measured in ounces, considerably more than doubled during the decade; that of silver showed large fluctuations, and in 1900 was but little more than in 1891. The respective values in 1891 were for silver $75,416,565, and for gold $3,175,000. Silver touched its lowest point in 1894, when its value was $64,000,000, that of gold for the same year being $3,500,000. Silver had its greatest lead in 1892, when it stood at $82,099,150, against only $3,000,000 for gold. In 1899 gold passed silver in an almost neck and neck race, the respective values being for gold $71,055,400, and for silver $70,806,626. In 1900 gold increased its lead, standing at $79,323,231, against $77,070,471 for silver.—Youth's Companion.

A. J. Snell wanted to attend a party, but was afraid to do so on account of pains in his stomach, which he feared would grow worse. He says, "I was telling my troubles to a lady friend, who said: 'Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will put you in condition for the party.' I bought a bottle and take pleasure in stating that two doses cured me and enabled me to have a good time at the party." Mr. Snell is a resident of Summer Hill, N. Y. This remedy is for sale by A. E. Howell, Socorro; W. M. Borrowdale, Magdalena.

Millionaires' Smelting Project.

The erection of a new process smelter together with the development of several new mining districts in Colorado and the extension of American mining and smelting methods into the republic of Mexico are among the things to be accomplished by the American Development and Construction company, a Colorado Springs concern, which was incorporated in Denver on Tuesday. John Hayes Hammond and Fred W. Baker, the famous mining experts, are among the list of incorporators, the directors of which consist of the above named gentlemen and Henry F. May of Denver, Henry A. Butters, a wealthy California mining man, who makes his headquarters at Colorado Springs and Irving W. Bonebright, Leonard E. Curtis and Henry Hine of Colorado Springs. The capital stock of the new company is placed at $500,000.

The incorporation of the new company and announcement that they will at once begin on their new plans is considered a highly important matter, but local mining men foresee in the association of Messrs. Hammond, Baker and Butters the union of a considerable force of energy and wealth, which will result in much development in different mining districts in this state. Mr. Hammond and Mr. Baker, during their visits to Colorado, have examined numerous properties in various parts of the state, several of which will be exploited by the new company. Mr. Hammond is at present in New York and Mr. Baker is at his home in London.—Denver News.

Lead Drop Due to Agreement.

The action of the smelter trust in reducing the price of lead to four cents is considered by many mining men a good thing for lead producers though it is probably that before the end of the year or shortly after that it will drop to three and one-half cents. This is being done by the smelter people, in conjunction with the lead producers of the Coeur d'Alene and other western districts, and is part of an attempt on their part to force the Missouri lead men into the lead combine. This they have refused to entertain, and their production of lead, together with the augmented production which has resulted all over the country through the comparatively high price which has been paid makes it necessary that something be done to curtail production. This is expected will result from the cut in the price. But for this concerted action it is feared the price would be forced down to two and three-quarter cents.—Denver News.

Saw Death Near.

"It often made my heart ache," writes L. C. Overstreet, of Elgin, Tenn., "to hear my wife cough until it seemed her weak and sore lungs would collapse. Good doctors said she was so far gone with Consumption that no medicine or earthly help could save her, but a friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery and persistent use of this excellent medicine saved her life." It's absolutely guaranteed for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all Throat and Lung diseases. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists. W. M. Borrowdale, Magdalena.

The Owl.

Get a peanut with as large a top to it as possible. Paint or mark on each side with your pen a round black spot where the eye should be. Make little marks on the shell to indicate feathers. To make wings use a small piece of common tissue paper, which you must cut in the shape of wings and spatter with ink. Paste these wings on the back of the peanut. Make the eyes of little round pieces of silver or white paper and stick a pin through them, with which you can then fasten the eyes to the peanut at the black spot. You must now get a little twig and fasten the peanut to it by running two pins through the branch. Thus you will be able to make a very fair specimen of the owl tribe.

Acts like magic on sprains, bruises, cuts, sores, scalds, burns, boils, ulcers. Perfect healer of skin diseases and piles. Cure guaranteed by all druggists. W. M. Borrowdale, Magdalena. Price 25c.

Sorely Tempted.

The author of "A Visit to Java" tells a good dog story which has also to do with ducks. The moral of the story is that neither the one nor the other should be subjected to temptation beyond reason.

A planter in Java kept a number of canine pets. Among these Bob, an English bulldog, was his favorite. The dog was as good-natured as he was ugly in appearance, seldom misbehaving, even when severely tempted. On one occasion, however, he did give way to anger; but it must be admitted that he had provocation.

His master had some black ducks which he had reared with much care to ornament the little lake in the garden. One afternoon when Bob was taking his nap in the neighborhood of the kitchen, with his small white teeth protruding from his black lips, after the manner of bulldogs, and gleaming in the light, an unfortunate duck came by. Seeing the white particles, the duck mistook them for grains of rice, and tried to pick them up.

The stroke of her bill on Bob's nose woke him and aroused his indignation. A short scuffle and a plaintive quack, and the duck's career was ended.

But that was not all. So serious did Bob consider this insult to his dignity that, in spite of repeated whippings, he persisted until he had killed every one of the ducks.

Honest Criticism.

If the test that Count Tolstoi applied on one occasion to his sons were made universal, criticism might possibly be more honest than at present, but it would not be agreeable.

A lady's singing having displeased Count Tolstoi's boys on one occasion, they retired to another room and showed their disapproval by making a noise. Their father stood it for a time, and then followed them into the other room.

"Are you making a noise on purpose?" he asked.

The question was a close one, but was presently answered by a doubtful "Y-yes."

"Does not her singing please you?" asked the count.

"Well, no. Why does she howl so?" responded one of the boys.

"Do you wish to protest against her singing?" asked their father.

"Yes."

"Then go into the room and say so. Stand in the middle of the room and tell every one present," replied the count. "That would be rude, but upright and honest. Your present conduct is both rude and dishonest."

True it is, and always has been, that cheerfulness is riches that cannot be taxed.—January Ladies' Home Journal.

Confining a British Visitor.

A big British battleship coming here to attend a patriotic function of some kind on the invitation of our government ran short of coal, and Uncle Sam, as host, agreed to fill her bunkers free of charge. This courtesy was done through the medium of a Jersey City merchant, who supplied fine furnace coal worth from $6 to $7 a ton and presented his bill to the English captain. "Send it to the navy department," said the latter, and to Washington it went, to be returned by the next mail with a memorandum attached saying that an error had been made in the charge, "the government contract calling for coal at $3 a ton." And that is all the smart Jerseyite ever received.—New York Press.
